

Abstract

A system to substantially reduce the lines for an attraction where the system comprises a central processor and a transmitter that emits signals to be received by a plurality of receivers. The 5 receivers passively receive the signals from the transmitter and upload information to the central processor using common magnetic field interrogation propagation.